Fuses claimed as Warranty

The Mitsubishi Warranty department has noticed that some dealers are claiming for fuses on their warranty claims due to the fuse failing, when in fact the fuse has not failed, but done the job it was designed for.

This bulletin is being sent to remind dealers that a blown fuse is usually the result of a failure. The component/condition that caused the failure of the fuse should be identified on the warranty claim as the cause part and reflected in the quality information.

The fuse should not be claimed as the cause part on the warranty claim. A warranty claim should not have a fuse marked as the causal part unless there is a manufacturing defect with the fuse.

Failure to adhere to this procedure may result in non payment or a delay in payment of the warranty claim.
