Warranty Position codes beginning 01 or 02

This bulletin is being sent to remind dealers that position codes that begin with either 01 or 02 are only to be used for recall claims or service campaign claims.

It has been noticed of late that some dealers are using position codes of specific recall or service campaigns for warranty repairs. If dealers are claiming for a warranty claim (claim type 'W'), then dealers MUST NOT use a position code that begins with 01 or 02. If the claim is for a recall or service campaign, then the claim type will be 'S' and the position code for both quality and labour MUST begin with either 01 or 02 (refer to the applicable recall or service campaign notification for specific details).

Warranty is currently putting a change in to the warranty system that will automatically disapprove claims submitted which have a position code that begins with either 01 or 02 and does not have a claim type of 'S'.
