Better utilising the MMAL Warranty department

To aid MMAL and the dealer network the following issues should be understood.

1. Timing - There seem to be unrealistic expectations about the timings to process warranty claims (these expectations may have been instilled by over enthusiastic MMAL staff at the initial training sessions). We had one case where an email asking why a claim has not been processed was sent 2 minutes after the claim was submitted! A lot of claims are processed very quickly but not always, batch jobs run from every 15 minutes to 4 hours depending on the circumstance. We ask that you leave it at least 24 hours before requesting assistance on a claim that has made it into SAP and has an SAP claim number. This is still better than the previous system which always took at least 24 hours and up to 48 hours to process. This will eliminate a large number of emails asking for the status of a claim that has already been processed by the time that the email is answered. Constant monitoring via "Work Overview" will let you know how things are going.
2. Workload – Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday are our busiest days for emails along with the days coming up to month end and prior to a payment run. A steadier stream of queries is easier for us to deal with than the up and down pattern we currently get. If it is possible, try not to batch up your claims and submit them just before a pay run but put them in steadily throughout the month. Similarly with your emails if you have a claim that is "stuck" don't wait until the last minute (before a pay run or month end) before chasing it up as it may require more than one email to fix.
3. Processing – Please give MMAL some time to process claims as mentioned above. Some claims have triggers that deliberately put them into a manual processing mode even though the dealer has filled it out correctly; this is no different from how the system previously worked. Unlike the old system, in the new system you can see the error messages generated by processing, this has caused some confusion. MMAL will shortly issue some instructions on what these messages mean and what action to take.

Communication

MMAL acknowledges that our communication of latest issues and fixes may not have been good enough in the past few months (issues with the WIS disks have been occupying our time) but you should notice a difference in the coming weeks.
