Reprocessing Warranty Claims

There is a process in the warranty system that allows Dealers to reprocess their own claims after changes have been made to the claim.

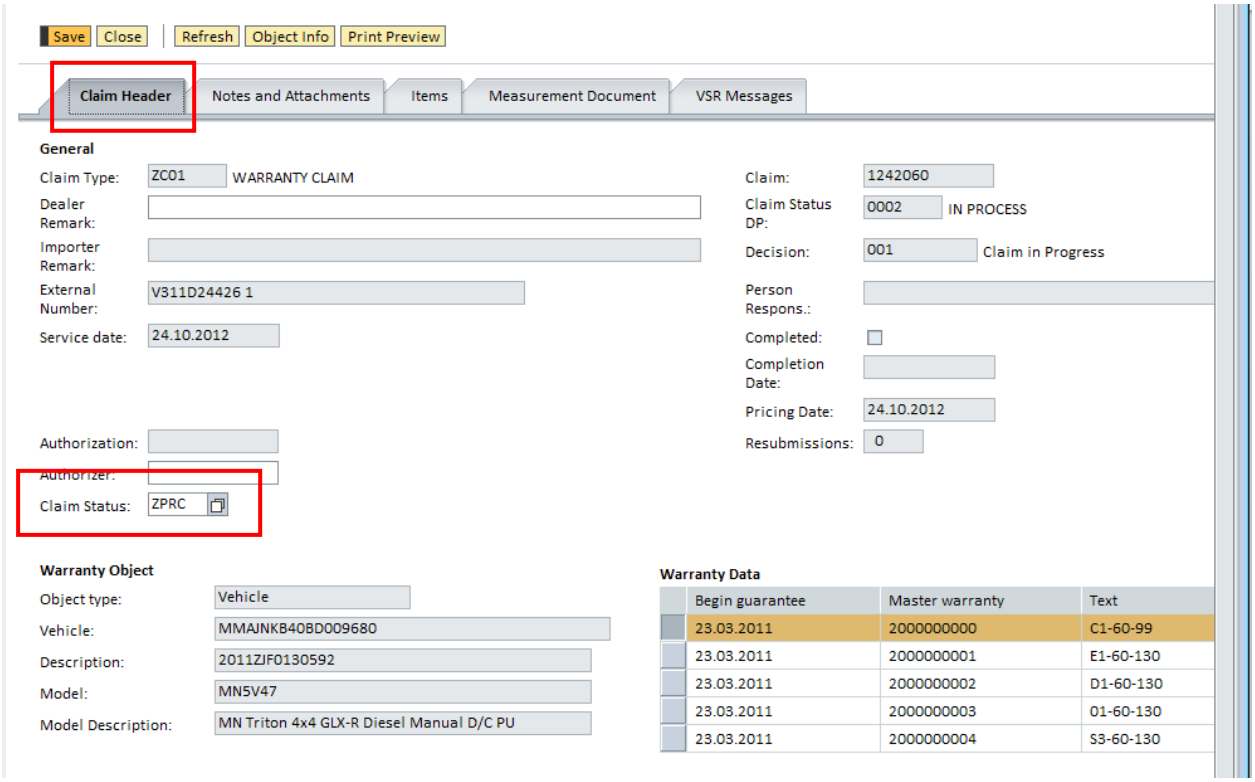

Dealers should make changes to their claims when the claim is in a Returned For Correction status. After the necessary changes to a claim have been made and saved, Dealers can select to reprocess the claim and then wait to see the results of the reprocessing.

If the changes made are correct, the claim will move to an Approved status, otherwise the claim will be in a Disapproved status with an error message, Returned For Correction with a new error message or the claim will be in Processes status for MMAL Warranty to review. Claims in the Returned For Correction status can be corrected, saved and then selected for reprocessing again.

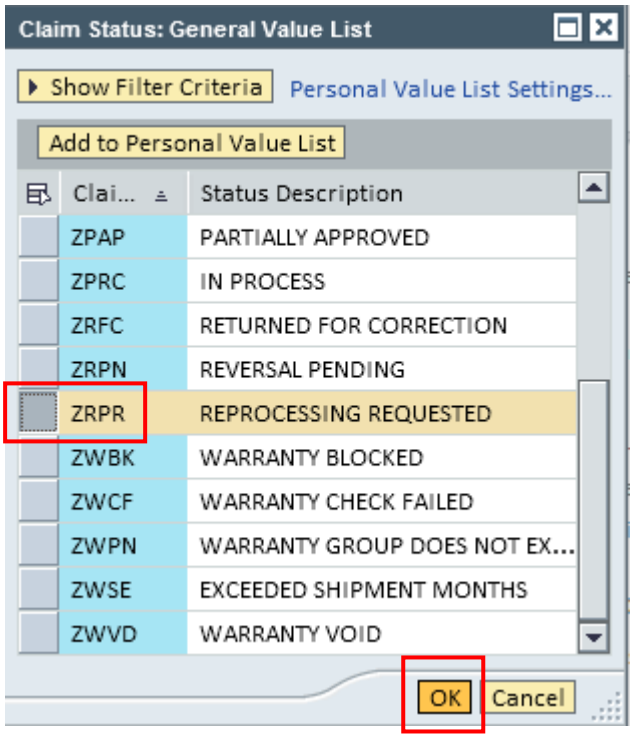

To select a claim for reprocessing, follow the following steps:

- Select the applicable claim number for correction.
- Make the necessary changes to the claim and save the claim.
- Select the Claim Header tab.
- Go to the Claim Status field and click the white box to expand the options. See screen shot below.

- Click the ZRPR option and then click OK.

- Click Save, then click Close to close the window.
- The system will then reprocess the claim.
- Allow ample time for the system to reprocess the claim (refer to WIB-2012-19 – Timing).

In addition to the above, Dealers can also use this functionality if they submit an SCA after submitting their claim to have the claim reprocessed or if changes have been made to the SCA, the claim can be reprocessed once the SCA has been approved with changes.
