Warranty Claim and SCA Matrix

In the attached document, MMAL Warranty have created a matrix that dealers can use to assist with the preparation of Service Claim Authority requests and Goodwill authority requests in order for the authorities to match the warranty claim that is to be submitted.

The matrix has three components to it
1. Warranty claim fields and corresponding Service Claim Authority (SCA) fields
2. Warranty claim fields and corresponding Goodwill authority fields
3. An explanation of the warranty item types

Items relevant to a Warranty Claim are described under the heading Warranty Claim. This is split in to two sub headings:-

Item Description – Claim Header: This column contains the Item Description as seen on the Portal Claim Submission Claim Header tab for the summarised Claim Values.
Item Type Description – Claim Item: This column contains the Item Type Description as seen on the Portal Claim Submission Item tab.

The SCA and Goodwill sections of the matrix, shown by the headings SCA Field and Goodwill Field, refer to the different items that appear in these documents that must be completed based on what will be entered on the warranty claim. The total of each section of the warranty claim will determine the total amount entered in each section of the SCA or Goodwill authority.

The third section of the matrix is a brief explanation of each of the item types used on a warranty claim. This does not include every scenario, but it covers the most common uses that might be encountered.

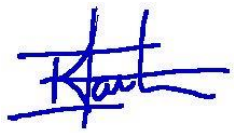

With respect to SCA's and Goodwill authorities dealers should also note the following:
1. If a VSR message appears on a claim with the message SCAVARY, this means that one or more of the amounts entered on the SCA or Goodwill SCA in a section (that is, the parts total, labour total etc.) exceeds the values entered on the warranty claim by 10% or greater OR the total value of the SCA or Goodwill authority exceeds the total warranty claim value by 10% or greater. To fix this, dealers must enter the SCA or Goodwill authority amounts in the sections corresponding to the warranty claim for the same amount or no more than 10% higher than the claimed amount.

2. If a VSR message appears on a claim with the message SCAEXCD, this means that one or more of the amounts entered on the SCA or Goodwill authority in a section (that is, the parts total, labour total etc.) is less than what has been entered on the claim OR the total value of the SCA or Goodwill authority is less than the total warranty claim value. To fix this, dealers must enter the SCA or Goodwill authority amounts in the sections corresponding to the warranty claim for the same amount or no more than 10% higher than the warranty claim amount.

3. SCA's or Goodwill authorities should always be submitted for the full parts and labour costs with respect to the repair completed. SCA's or Goodwill authorities may be adjudicated to allow only partial reimbursement, which will be indicated by an approval percentage for parts and labour. Where an SCA or Goodwill authority has been approved for partial reimbursement, dealers must always submit their warranty claims with the full parts and labour costs recorded. The percentage approved on the SCA or Goodwill authority will adjust the warranty claim accordingly.

4. To ensure that SCA's and Goodwill authorities attach to the correct warranty claims, the VIN, Repair Order number and Suffix of the authorities must match the warranty claim VIN, Repair Order number and Suffix exactly. If any of these details differ then there will be a delay in processing the warranty claim.
