Work Code 99

Work code "99" is used to claim actual time or straight time.

When no appropriate operation code can be found in the Operation Code Manual for the work performed, work code "99" can be used to make up an operation code by adding it to the most appropriate Position Code.

Use the following instructions to create an operation code using work code "99"

- Search the "Position Code Index" from the Operation Code Manual to find a suitable Position Code. Once found make up the operation code by adding the work code "99" to the position code
  (eg for realigning an Instrument Panel, use 523100 INSTRUMENT PANEL GENERAL with work code "99" to become 52310099. When entering this into SAP use the Item Type "Actual Time", enter the created operation code as the "Labour Operation" and then the amount to be paid under "ClaimedAmount"

  The "ClaimedAmount" is calculated by the time clocked multiplied by the Dealer Warranty Labour Rate eg 0.6hrs times $88.34 equals $53.00.)

- If no position code is found to be appropriate for the required operation, make up a position code by using "00" for the minor group to follow the medium group to which the required operation belongs and add work code "99" to that position code.

Dealers can use work code "99" when:

1. a work code for the work performed does not exist in the Operation Code Manual,
2. when part of the operation was completed by an external resource and claimed as a sublet
3. when instructed by MMAL

Other factors to consider:

- The time claimed when using a work code “99” must be supported by technician clocking times.
- If a work code “99” is used for point 2 above and an operation time is published, the amount claimed on the work code “99” plus the sublet must not exceed the amount the Dealer would normally be paid for that operation.
- Dealers must make comments in the notes section of the claim if a work code “99” is used.
- work code “99” cannot be used for recall and service campaign claims unless advised by MMAL
- work code “99” cannot be used for diagnosis or for workshop efficiency

Another explanation of the use of work code “99” can be found on the Claim Coding video at 18 minutes 29 seconds.
